

Uribe 121: The Best Place to Scuba Dive in Mexico

The moment every scuba diver was waiting for: The first artificial reef theme park in the Pacific is opening its doors, and you can now experience the best wreck diving in Mexico.

The Uribe 121 is the first of four ships that will be part of the Rosarito Underwater Park. It will sink on late November to give life to new marine life and transform into an artificial reef and a unique submarine adventure.

The day of the sinkage November 21st, 2015 there will be a ceremony and a protocol act that will be private but also public, as it will be transmitted live through Tv Azteca Mexican national broadcaster. Some tourist destinations, like the Puerto Nuevo Hotel located on the Tijuana-Ensenada Freeway, will be celebrating the protocol event mean wild on "los arenales" an open-air festival with local food trucks you cannot miss. Food and fun? Yes, please!

The event will also be visible from different points of the toll road: an 11 miles-stretch going from Calafia, Puerto Nuevo to the La Jolla del Mar condos, located on Popotla Boulevard. You can go ahead and park your car as you step out to watch the detonation that will sink the Uribe 121 to a depth of 95 ft, just around 1.2 miles away from the Rosarito shore.

And last but not least, there is another option to watch the sinkage: by renting a boat you will be able to admire the spectacle off-shore from a secure perimeter and under the supervision of Mexican authorities. The boats will be available for rent at the marines, but you can also bring your own and witness the historical event at no cost.

Please take into account that safety is first, which is why there won't be access to the ship immediately after its sinkage. After the ceremony, a team of divers will go down to make sure all of the explosives went off; they will inspect the ship and, later on, the first immersion will be made by the Divers Association of Baja California. The rest of us will have to wait at least a day to go underwater, but don't worry, we assure you the wait will be worth it.
